Time until Retirement:

A Note on the Retirement of one D. P. Story

After 30 years in academics, it is time to throw in the chalk and begin a new life in retirement, no not retirement but relocation. I will be retiring in May of 2006. My family and I plan to move to the panhandle of Florida for fun in the sun. I will continue to work, on and off for Adobe Systems, and perhaps for one of the four-year colleges located in that region of Florida.

As for the fate of my AcroT_EX web site, with all its tutorials, its white-papers on L^AT_EX/PDF, its PDF games, its software, such as the AcroT_EX eDucation Bundle, etc., etc., so on and so forth, it will no doubt be taken down and thrown into the bit-bucket. I've had a very good run at developing online materials, and at inspiring others to do the same. I'm satisfied.

But wait, all is not lost. The AcroT_EX eDucation Bundle will be moving to my new web site at <http://www.acrotex.net>. I will continue to develop it until they plow me under. There will be a new AcroT_EX product coming in the first quarter of 2006 called the AcroT_EX Presentation Bundle. Watch for it.

Many thanks to all the students and educators that I've communicated with through the years, they encouraged me, motivated me and buoyed my spirits at times. Appreciation for my work was enough reward for my labor. And now, I simply must get back to work.
